

Bob Hunter: President / Chief Executive Officer (CEO)

Originally from Syracuse, New York, Bob's professional journey began with military service aboard ship following specialized IBM systems training in the U.S. Navy. After returning home, he spent 22 years at Marine Midland Bank, where he served as Vice President over three data centers and led office automation initiatives—including for an affiliate bank in London. During this period, he also earned his degree in Business from Empire State College.

In 1988, Bob relocated to Jacksonville and joined Computer Power Inc., contributing for 15 years—10 of which were as Executive Vice President and Director of Business Partners. In that role, he cultivated relationships with more than 100 companies in the mortgage industry, delivering systems and internet-based solutions. His service extended beyond the office to include board leadership with the Northeast Florida Red Cross and two homeowners' associations.

Bob's entrepreneurial spirit later led him to Austin, where he operated a food service franchise before settling in Atlantic Beach and joining the Fleet Landing community. Today, he remains an engaged member of several civic and charitable groups, including Fleet Hearts and the community think tank. As a Residents' Council ambassador, Bob champions health, safety, and well-being initiatives while enjoying friendly competition through bowling, trivia, canasta, and poker.

Price Schwenck: Vice President / Chief Information Officer (CIO)

With more than four decades of executive leadership in financial services, Price brings deep institutional experience to CCSG's mission of celebrating competitive excellence. He has served as Regional President for First Union National Bank in both Miami and Jacksonville, and has since built and led two community banks as founding Director and CEO. His career has also included steering a multi-bank holding company as President and CEO, where he oversaw multiple strategic acquisitions.

Price's breadth of knowledge spans corporate governance, strategic planning, mergers and acquisitions, and organizational development—making him a critical driver of CCSG's long-term vision and infrastructure.

A life-long learner and published author, Price has written two books exploring leadership philosophies that elevate organizational performance. He holds a B.S. and M.B.A. from the University of South Florida, and an M.S. in Quality Management from the University of Miami.

Donors and stakeholders value Price's thought leadership, integrity, and ability to translate strategic complexity into collaborative opportunity. His presence at CCSG affirms our commitment to operational excellence and visionary growth.

Walter Kraslawsky: Treasurer / Chief Financial Officer (CFO), and Webmaster / Chief Technology Officer (CTO)

As CCSG's Treasurer and CFO, Walter applies 40+ years of hands-on financial management leveraging Quicken and custom-built spreadsheets to guide both personal and organizational finances. His meticulous approach ensures CCSG operates with transparency, precision, and purpose—empowering community excellence across all ages and disciplines.

As CCSG's CTO, Walter brings over five decades of strategic technology leadership to CCSG. His career began in the 1960s as a programmer with IBM and the U.S. Air Force, evolving through government and industry roles that spanned systems engineering, cybersecurity, and IT management. Notably, he supported the Congressional Research Service for 20 years at the Library of Congress, designed software to maintain management visibility for infrastructure overhauls for the IRS, and served as IT Branch Chief and CIO for the Department of the Navy.

In retirement, Walter's commitment to community enrichment blossomed—from volunteering as Fleet Landing's "Tech Whisperer" solving community tech problems, to developing scorekeeping tools for local and nationwide senior competitions. As League Secretary of the National Senior League (NSL), he has helped unify over 100 senior teams through digital tournament management. His near-continuous involvement with competitive activities and problem-solving was the seed that grew into the CCSG vision and mission.

Kathy Kraslawsky: Executive Advisor / Chief Operating Officer (COO)

With a career spanning government service, community leadership, and nonprofit advocacy, Kathy brings both strategic depth and operational rigor to CCSG's mission.

She spent over a decade in the U.S. Intelligence Community, where she managed multi-million-dollar technical programs and led cyber personnel teams as a division and field chief. Her work demanded precision, adaptability, and leadership under pressure—qualities she now channels into CCSG's operational strategy and advisory initiatives.

Kathy's early career began with the YMCA in Haverhill, MA, where she coached youth swimmers and championed community athletic development. Post-retirement, her commitment to service continued through grant writing and animal care at a Volusia County wildlife rehabilitation center, and through elected leadership on her local HOA board, where she spearheaded major infrastructure upgrades.

Her diverse background makes her an invaluable asset to CCSG's leadership team, combining government-level program management with grassroots fundraising and community-building acumen.
